There are said to be a great many holes and gullies in the streets that feed relling. On Washington street between Fourth and Fifth there is a very dangerous depression of this kind, left by some plumber. There is a law against leaving the streets in such a condition, and Street Inspector Cooley will doubtless see that the hole is filled.

Tomorrow the Kentucky game law expires, and emulous nimrods will be free to go out and kill all the quail they can carry. It is said that there was never seen such a number of birds, and all the local sportsmen are eager to get in and see how many they can bring back with them.

Local sportsmen, however, enjoy advantages that can be found nowhere in no other portion of the state. The game laws in both Illinois and Tennessee expire weeks before the Kentucky law, and although the birds cannot be legally shot in this state, the hunter can go a few miles away and enter good territory for shooting. Game laws do not handicap hunters in this end of the state.

to be most bitterly fought in the parts.

There is nothing old about Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey. Reliable, old time remedies are used in its manufacture, but Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey scientifically combines new and valuable medical agencies. This remedy advances a theory in the treatment of all lung and bronchial coughs unheard of until its introduction. It always cures quickly coughs, colds and grip. It strengthens weak lungs and relieves consumption.

There will be thanksgiving services at 11 o'clock at the A. M. E. church Thursday, Nov. 26th.

Rev. G. H. Burks extends a cordial invitation through this department to all the ministers in the city.

The Odd Fellows are making elaborate preparations to give a grand entertainment at their hall Thanksgiving day.

Rev. L. B. Sims, presiding elder of the A. M. E. church, has a severe attack of the flu and has been confined to his bed several days of his home, No. 723 Odd street.

of every description, which were exchanged for cotton. The harp had made one round trip on the snake-like stream after the writer had been appointed her purser under the command of Capt. Jay Irenia with the well-known old St. Louis and Tennessee river pilot, Kit Haslip, at the wheel. As his duties as supercargo were merely nominal, and as he always nursed a mania to be a pilot the writer spent most of his time while the boat was under way steering for Kit. We had left Greasewood early in the morning on our second voyage with 931 bales of cotton, which were to be exchanged for the steamer Hoerner's load at Greasewood. Late that afternoon, the overflow having commenced to recede, we ran abreast of a levee in one of the old plantation levees, which the great volume of receding water had swept away for a distance of a quarter of a mile or more. We were right out there

Properly Named.

The White Man's Grave is a ghastly name, well deserved by the Sierra Leone colony, according to Lieut. Col. Trotter, who has been settling the Anglo-French boundary in that region, the Hinterland of Sierra Leone is more like the white man's paradise. This Hinterland is a fertile district, with plenty of water, capable of producing anything suitable for cattle raising and healthy for Europeans—quite unlike the coast line.—Chicago Tribune.

Mary's Definition.

It was in the Sunday-school class. "What is a wine bibber?" asked the teacher of the little tots.

Up went little Mary's hand.

"Well, Mary?"

"I think it is a man who drinks wine with a bib on so he won't spill his nice new clothes."—Grand Plain Dealer.

liked when made in perfect, sprig muslin, the spotted, dotted and plaide goods having been to some extent set aside. These curtains are trimmed with a ruffle of the goods about four inches wide. The ruffles are sometimes fluted, or they may be pinched in the plaits over the finger, or crimped with a knife, as were ruffles in cap borders in other times.

Brussels net curtains, with fine embroidery, are very much admired. Some of the latter ones are exceedingly handsome, and sell for $20 to $30 a pair.

A set of window draperies made of satin with renaisance designs at $250 per window was sold the other day for $100 per window.—N. Y. Ledger.

Kind of Him.

"I was reading of a man who had sustained a broken leg in arolley accident," said Ashurst Peppers. "I could not think how kind it was to him."

"Kind?" said Mrs. Hamman.

"Yes. It is a certainty that the broken leg is a certainty, Jim, is it not?"

A pair of broiled frog legs is a delicacy that not everyone can enjoy to perfection, because so few people understand how to prepare the legs properly for this purpose. Select the largest frogs. Prepare a marinade of three tablespoonsful of sweet oil, a half-teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of pepper and the juice of a lemon. Roll the frog legs in this mixture and lay them on a double oyster broiler and broil them for five minutes on one side and then for five minutes on the other. They should be an even, rich brown. Serve them on a hot platter. Mix a tablespoonful of minced parsley with five heaping tablespoonful of butter. Add the juice of half a lemon. Spread when shilled over the hot frog legs.

Fried "frogs" have been in use among the Spanish and French since the days of Charles V. The English proverbial saying, "to be a snapper up of frogs," has its origin in the middle of this century.
